Wm. Powell and Myrna Loy Reunited in 'After the Thin Man'

FAMED MR. AND MRS. TEAM IN MYSTERY FILM

A Sequel To Their First Hit as Tandem.

THE LAUGHING STARS OF "AFTER THE THIN MAN," OPENING HERE SUNDAY

WALLACE BEERY IN 'OLD HUTCH' AT MAJESTIC

Human Drama Of Loafer Finding a Fortune.

BOWES' AMATEURS AT MAJESTIC

William Powell and Myrna Loy, the merriest, maddest married couple ever to come out of Hollywood, step from the last thrilling page of "The Thin Man" into the hilarious chapter of the sequel millions have demanded be written "After the Thin Man," which opens Sunday at the Paramount theater.

Dashiell Hammett, dean of smart, sophisticated mystery writers, was dared to top "The Thin Man," "After the Thin Man" is his answer. Detective Nick Charles and wife, Nora, romancing again amid riotous mirth and dramatic murder, brought to the screen by the same behind-the-scenes combination, W. S. Van Dyke, its director, Hunt Stromberg, its producer, Frances Goodrich and Albert Hackett, its scenarists.

The stars surrounded by a sparkling supporting cast of favorites, James Stewart, Elissa Landi, Joseph Calleia, Jessie Ralph, Alan Marshall, Teddy Hart, Sam Levene, Dorothy McQuay, George Zucco, Paul Fix and Asta, the wire-haired terrier star of "The Thin Man."

"After the Thin Man" is more than just another sequel. It picks up in high where "The Thin Man" left off. Nick and Nora, having conquered New York, are on their way home to bustling cosmopolitan San Francisco with its colorful, eerie Chinatown, its energetic ferries and its magnificent bridges. Nick has put his sleuthing career in moth balls for good. He and Nora want nothing but lots of peace, quiet and relaxation. It is New Year's eve when they arrive at the door of their swank Nob Hill home.

And they walk right into a whoopee party. Half of San Francisco, society, policemen, bums, race track touts, ex-pugs and underworld friends, have dropped in to welcome them home.

The telephone rings. Over the wire, Hammett introduces Nick's headache, Nora's aristocratic family, the whole group to be found outside of a museum.

Nick and Nora are invited to dinner. Selma, Nora's cousin, is in trouble. Her dissolute husband, Robert, has been missing for three days. Nora's testy aunt, an overbearing, grand dame, wouldn't have anything to do with Nick, but the family honor must be kept out of the headlines.

At midnight, with Nora prodding him, Nick is at the Lichee, a Chinatown dive. Robert is found there with Polly, a singer, and Nick suspects being involved in a blackmail scheme.

The rest of the story is a deep, dark secret, the ending is locked in a safe. To assure that the usual climax would not be prematurely revealed, the last three scenes were not filmed until the rest of the picture was completed.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has spared nothing to make "After the Thin Man" the funniest, snappiest, most exciting comedy-mystery melodrama ever screened. It is aimed at only one thing, sheer undiluted audience entertainment.

"Great Guy" Packs Cagney Punch in Thriller at the Luna

Packing the Cagney punch—both figuratively and literally and told against a background that is refreshingly new and different, "Great Guy" James Cagney's first picture for Grand National opens Sunday at the Luna theater. After nearly a year's absence from the screen, except for his appearance as "Bottom" in "Midsummer Night's Dream" last summer, the dynamic little redheaded star will be welcomed by myriads of Cagney fans.

"Great Guy" pictures the popular star as a deputy in the Weights and Measures department of a large city, who is placed in charge of the department through the "ganging" of his chief by a group of politicians and grafters, who seek to control the short weight racket. When he sets out to break up the ring, he swiftly finds himself up against powerful forces which ruthlessly seek to destroy him.

He almost loses the girl he loves, his life is threatened and he is framed and faces disgrace, but he remains sturdily steadfast to the trust placed in him by his superior and his devotion to what he knows is his duty to the public. How he manages to clear his name, uphold his office and round up the crafty ring who have tried to ruin him forms the theme of one of the fastest moving pictures in which Cagney has yet appeared.

Mae Clarke plays opposite Cagney and the two renew the romantic interest generated when they appeared together in "Public Enemy" and "Lady Killer." James Burke, Edward Brophy, Henry Kolker, Edward McNamara and Joseph Sawyer head the nicely balanced supporting cast.

"Great Guy" was adapted for the screen from the popular Johnny Cave stories in the Saturday Evening Post by James Edward Grant, and produced for Grand National by Douglas MacLean. John G. Blystone directed the picture.

All right, all right, a group of the major's hand-picked amateurs will appear in person on the stage of the Majestic theater Tuesday for one day only. The unit to appear here is called the "Transcontinental Revue." This show reaches Kankakee on a tour of the nation's leading theaters. Due to the limited engagement four complete shows will be given. Featured are the Mimicking Melodiers, four boys who imitate all the leading orchestras. Wundy Jack, music from a bicycle pump, balloons and spoons and what have you. Jimmy Erickson, accordionist with flying fingers, Dave Segal, master of ceremonies, Wendel sisters, Sam "Texas" Hinton, Ruth O'Neil and Johnny Powell, dynamic tap dancer. This revue has nine acts in all and carries its own scenery, presents 60 minutes of fast fun according to the management.
